Councilman withdraws zoning request, commission chairman defends petition

Canyon City Commissioner Willis Harrison withdrew his petition for rezoning of property on 4th Avenue Thursday night just prior to a public hearing on his request.

More than 35 persons heard Clarence Thompson, chairman of the city planning and zoning commission, when he announced the withdrawal by Dr. Harrison, who had asked that certain property be rezoned from multi-family to commercial.

"Dr. Harrison called me 10 or 15 minutes ago and said he'd like for me to officially withdraw his petition for a change in zoning,"

Thompson told the crowd.

The commission chairman noted that although the petition had been filed jointly by Harrison and Brian McDonald, another property owner, the withdrawal by one party to the petition would nullify the petition.

Thompson's remarks came at the opening of a public hearing to discuss Harrison's proposal.

Several residents in the area around the concerned property had earlier told The News they were opposed to the rezoning effort.

Thompson and commission member Kenneth Olson defended Harrison's move.

"I really feel perhaps I am as much or more responsible for his making the request," Thompson said as he stood before the crowd. "He came to me at Christmas time and said he'd almost accidentally acquired the property."

Thompson said Harrison "couldn't help but think that as commercial property" he would have gained more in resale value.

"But, he said he was reluctant to have it changed because he is on the (city) commission," Thompson said. "He asked my opinion."

Thompson said he believes that "because a man is willing to take time away from his business to serve the community as a commissioner, he shouldn't be denied the same rights you and I have to petition for rezoning."

"Dr. Harrison, when he mentioned it to me, wasn't at all sure this was the thing to do. I urged him to bring it to this group because that is the function of this group."

Thompson said the last thing Harrison wanted to do was "to devalue anyone else's property." Olson called Harrison a "dedicated citizen and a good city commissioner."

"He's a great guy." Following the brief remarks, about 20 of the 35 persons present left the meeting and the commission opened another public hearing, this one on the zoning of the newly-annexed Crow Addition.

City manager George Louder recommended that the addition be zoned SF2, a residential zoning.

Louder said that zoning would be most compatible with existing buildings in the addition (See ZONING, page 6)

AUSTIN—The Canyon Girl Eagles, determined to repeat as Class AAA girls champions failed in the waning minutes of the fourth quarter as the Angleton Wildcats fashioned a 57-55 come-from-behind victory at Gregory gym here Saturday night.

The Eagles led with 7-11 left in the game when Jan Diggs hit both ends of a 1 and 1 and gave Angleton a 48-46 lead they would not relinquish.

Canyon played tight defense throughout the game and the net result was many fouls and starters in foul trouble. The Wildcats' ability to hit free throws proved the difference in the game as Diggs hit 7 free throws in the last two minutes of the game.

Canyon took an opening 2-0 lead and built as much as an 8-2 lead before the Angleton team could find the scoring touch. Canyon led after the initial quarter 18-14, was up by 2 at the half, 36-34, and led going into the fourth quarter 46-44.

Much of the Eagles success was fashioned by the outside shooting of Kim Killingsworth who continually harassed the Angleton guards with 10-15 foot shots. Alisha Nelson proved a capable forward, collecting 20 points for the game.

The thrust of Angleton's scoring was through the efforts of Deborah Waddy and Diggs. Diggs had early difficulty finding the range, and Waddy was successfully blocked by the Canyon guards.

Waddy scored 35 points in the semi-final round against Duncanville.

However, it was neither Waddy nor Diggs who provided the late second quarter surge which brought Angleton to within two at the half. It was Sally Morris, hitting jumpers from the top of the key that brought the Wildcats to the locker room down 36-34.

In the third quarter, both teams scored 10 points with Nelson providing the key points for Canyon and Waddy and Diggs scoring 6 unanswered points in the last 30 seconds of the third quarter.

Morris tied the score with 7:44 left in the game at 46-46 on a short jumper. Killingsworth's attempted throw down court went out of bounds and Angleton controlled the ball.

Nelson fouled Diggs with 7:11 on the clock and she promptly hit both free throws to give Angleton the lead for the first time in the game.

Canyon appeared rattled at this point, throwing the ball away and letting the Wildcats have yet one more chance at the ball. This time, it was Judy McBroom who fouled Diggs and she responded by hitting the first half of a one and one to give Angleton a 3-point advantage.

From this point, Angleton fashioned as much as a 6-point lead with 3:43 in the game. Diggs and Waddy, provided the key points working the ball inside against the Canyon guards.

Canyon had one last rally left, though, and pulled within 2 with 11 seconds left in the outing on Cheryl Gunter's layup to make the score 57-55.

Angleton guard Diane Britt travelled giving the ball to Canyon with 7 seconds left in the game. Gunter tried one last attempt, but the shot fell short and all dreams of the state championship went with it.

To advance into the Saturday night finals, the Girl Eagles downed the Calhoun Sandies 49-44 in semi-final action on Friday night.

here during practice sessions last week at the Canyon High gym prior to traveling to Austin, where they downed Calhoun of Port LaVaca Friday night.

Canyon artist D. Crow stands beside her original painting of bluebonnets, "Patch of Blue," which has been reproduced on the cover of the 1973 Canyon telephone directory. About 5,000 copies of the new directory were distributed in Canyon yesterday. In addition, the picture will be used on 85,000 South Austin directories as well as those in five other counties.

Students want say in pres. pick

A petition calling for a student voice in selection of the next president of West Texas State University will be circulated on the WTSU campus beginning this week.

Mary Willburn, a junior student from Amarillo, said at least a half dozen will begin initial circulation of the petition on Wednesday.

The petition calls for the placement of two students on the five-member screening committee, which has been meeting since mid-January to review applications for the presidency.

The screening committee currently consists of a WTSU faculty member, a university administrator, and three area businessmen. No students are on the committee.

Miss Willburn said the petitions, which she hopes will contain as many as 4,000 signatures within a month, will be sent to Cloyce K. Box, chairman of the WTSU board of regents.

She said she hopes the two student representatives might be elected during spring elections later this school year.

She supports the petitions, she says, "so we can have a voice in the decisions of the school."

Miss Willburn said she feels there is widespread support for the petition on campus.

"I haven't talked to any students who don't like the idea," she said.

But, Miss Willburn is practical in her thinking, too.

"They'd (the current members of the committee) probably get what they want anyway because they would have more people," she said. "I think it would be good psychology to put some students on there."

She said her goal is to get every student at WTSU to sign the petitions.

Bill Montgomery, executive with Shamrock Oil in Amarillo and chairman of the screening committee, said the petitions should go to the board of regents for consideration.

"I have no comment on it," he said, "because I don't have anything to do with appointing the committee."

Montgomery reported the committee has received many applications and is still reviewing them.

The screening committee was established by the regents before Christmas and meets each Friday.

Currently on the committee are Montgomery, Pat Malone, of Hereford First National Bank; Wayne Rankin, president of the West Texas Ex-Students, Inc.; Dr. John Green, dean of the School of Fine Arts; and Dr. Jerry Miller, head of the faculty council.

Architects visit to gain inside view for building

The first step in the eventual construction of a new city hall complex began this week as architects visited Canyon to gain information.

Architects Robert E. Hogan and Richard L. Engler with the firm Henningson, Durham and Richardson said the first stage, a program master plan, is done from a completely functional point of view.

Engler said they were attempting to get a feeling of the operations of the city including the various functions of each department and the relationship of each department to other departments.

"We will get from George (City Manager George Louder) all his thoughts about how he works and what he needs," Engler said. "He hired us to be objective," he added. Engler said it was the architects' job to keep the functions operating efficiently and to minimize duplication of support functions.

"We will consider possible future growth needs and how activities might be different in the future."

Engler said the architects talked some with department heads but they will work more closely with them during the more detailed stages.

a city the size of Canyon. Louder said it would be expected to be around 150 gallons.

He attributed the high water usage to West Texas State University which uses about one-third of the water, large lots which must be maintained, and the public schools. Louder noted, however, Canyon does not have any large industrial user.

One of the problems the city encounters most often is leaks in the private water systems of Canyon residents, he said.

"You would be surprised to find what a little leak will cost in a water bill," Louder noted. Statistics show a one-thirty second inch leak will waste 25 gallons of water in 24 hours, a sixteenth inch leak will waste 100 gallons in 24 hours and a one-eighth inch leak, 400 gallons in 24 hours.

"There are many people with one-eighth inch leaks in their water systems in Canyon," he said.

Louder said the way people live, with washing machines, dishwashers, etc., encourages a

Supreme Court action could alter tax system, panel says

The ad valorem tax is hardly an equitable tax, but currently it produces the majority of revenue for local governments in the state and will be hard to replace, a panel of five told members of the Canyon Political Action Group Friday night.

State Rep. Bryan Poff, one of the panelists, said the state Legislature faces a mammoth problem with ad valorem taxation due to the pending Rodriguez case which is now before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Much of the discussion at the Friday meeting centered around the ramifications of the Rodriguez case, which alleges that the ad valorem tax provides an unequal education in Texas.

The case contends that school districts with wealthy residents provide far better education than do districts with poorer residents, due to the amount of tax money spent on education.

Poff said if the Supreme Court finds in favor of the plaintiffs in the case, Texas and other states face revision of their financial support system to school districts. Currently state money finances a large percentage of school system costs, while the remainder comes from locally collected ad valorem tax income.

At the state level, Poff said, the state is getting out of the ad valorem tax business and relying on excise taxes, sales taxes and other taxes for income.

He said the main function of the ad valorem tax in the state at state level is in financing school programs.

In that area, the Legislature will face some far-reaching decisions on ad valorem taxation in the state following the handing down of a decision by the Supreme Court.

Poff predicted if the court does (See TAXES, page 6)

Teacher system opposed in AAUP closed meeting

A resolution opposing the state's competency-based teacher education system, which was formulated to an extent through efforts of educators at West Texas State University, was adopted Thursday by members of the university American Association of University Professors chapter.

The action came during a closed-door meeting during which Dr. Ray Malzahn, WTSU academic vice president, discussed with members of the university's recent student evaluation of faculty members.

An AAUP official said the Thursday meeting was closed to the news media at the suggestion of Dr. Malzahn, who implied he would not speak at the meeting if The Canyon News were represented.

The AAUP executive board met recently concerning the vice president's request and asked The News not to be present at the meeting.

The resolution adopted Thursday follows a heated discussion two months ago when AAUP members collided with Dr. Emmitt Smith, WTSU educator, over the state-approved competency-based teacher education program.

The resolution reads:

"The West Texas Chapter of the American Association of University Professors expresses its opposition to any attempt by any individual, agency or center outside the concerned faculty to seek to control the content of university and college courses by their selection of specific objectives for these courses or by their veto power over the objectives and therefore the content of these courses as is apparently the intent of the Texas Education Agency's Competency Based Teacher Education Program."

Several other professional organizations for college professors have voiced resolute opposition to the competency-based education program, which was approved by the state legislature for implementation last summer.

The program calls for the establishment of centers outside the university to coordinate (See AAUP, page 6)

Richard Engler (left) and Robert Hogan, architects for the proposed city hall complex, were in Canyon this week to discuss requirements of the complex with City Manager George Louder. The architects said a first stage report on the complex should be available in about 60 days.

Murder trial due Wed. for Lolmaugh

The murder trial of Marvin Edward Lolmaugh, 30, charged with the shooting death of his father-in-law, is scheduled to begin Wednesday in 181st District Court here.

Lolmaugh, who is free on $10,000 bond, is charged with the early morning shooting of his father-in-law, Leonard Eugene "Pinky" Mullin, 50, a part-time Amarillo barkeep.

The shooting took place on the parking lot of Betty's Cafe Canyon E. Way and Bell in South Amarillo.

Lolmaugh is represented by Harrison Hampton of Canyon. The state is represented by Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert McClendon.

Mullin was found by Amarillo police lying in a pool of blood outside his 1970 station wagon on the same parking lot about 1:40 a.m. Nov. 3, 1972. He had been shot twice by a weapon believed to have been a .357 magnum revolver.

Lolmaugh was arrested shortly after the shooting at a gas station near the scene.

His wife, Julie, who was also present at the time of the shooting, was quoted by detectives as saying her husband had shot her father.

Earlier this week, two men are set to go on trial on charges of sale of marijuana.

Larry Allen Cate of Amarillo is to stand trial on a charge of sale of marijuana on Monday in 181st District Court. He was one of 11 Randall County residents arrested in a drugnet last October.

Allen D. Manning also of Amarillo is set to go on trial on similar charges Tuesday in 181st District Court. He was also arrested during the October drug raids.

Child Abuse Seen At All Social Levels

By ANN BROWN

A noted child specialist, Dr. James S. Aporthp, pediatric trauma coordinator of Children's Hospital, Los Angeles, says at least 60,000 children are beaten and tortured annually in the U.S. by their parents who may themselves have been the victims of abuse and who tend to perpetuate the "battered child syndrome."

Battered children, according to Dr. Aporthp, cannot be correlated with educational achievement, income level, social status, race, or "psychological determinants."

"Child abuse," the doctor notes, "occurs at all social and economic levels but is more frequent in situations of financial or family stress in which the pent-up frustrations of the parent are vented on the child as a scapegoat."

Dr. John E. Allen, Chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics, reported the problem of the battered child is "completely and totally out of control and growing."

Authorities report about 2,000 children die annually at the hands of their parents. But Dr. Allen insisted that figure "is just the tip of the iceberg."

Dr. Aporthp said the number of such deaths for children under five years old reportedly exceeds that for children in the same age group who die of disease.

Two little Dallas boys, aged 2 and 5, were tortured from Wednesday through Saturday when the man their mother was living with lost his job because his alarm clock failed to go off.

Nine child abuse cases have been reported recently in the Dallas-Ft. Worth area; three have died. One 18-month-old boy has been admitted to Parkland Hospital in critical condition. He was badly bitten and beaten.

Dr. Allen said some drug taking and alcoholism is involved in child abuse, but usually it is the result of an "emotional or psychological" outburst.

"Children are," said Dr. Allen, "scalded, burned with cigarettes and cigarette lighters, flung against walls until their skulls are fractured, beaten with fists, clubs, and bats." And the latest trend, he said, was poisoning them with hard drugs.

"The majority of the victims are pre-school children," said Dr. Allen. But the older child does not escape. "In my book," he added, "the 12-year-old girl who is raped by her mother's boyfriend is a battered child, too."

Because society shows few signs of being able to cope with the problem, Dr. Allen says the Academy is drawing up a three-point national program aimed at aiding the children and their families.

"A network of coordinated diagnostic and treatment centers will be established to help control the destiny of the battered child. In hundreds of cases where the little victim is returned to his parents, he is eventually found dead."

Dr. Allen said his figures could only be called estimates which probably fall far short of the actual cases. Only the most severe cases are reported to the authorities, and many of them are disguised as accidents.

Part of the Academy's program involves prevention. Communities will be asked to use "hotlines" to identify families suspected of abusing their children.

Troubled parents on the verge of losing control will also be asked to use the "hotline" to call for help. And rehabilitation and treatment centers are planned where the battering parents can be (hopefully) "salvaged."

Whether parents approve of their own upbringing, they usually follow a similar pattern in rearing their offspring. Therefore, the battered child should seek help before he becomes a parent. And all who know his situation should try to help him break the vicious chain.

In addition to saving the life of a helpless child, the "hotline" call from a neighbor or relative might prevent the abuse of that child's children and grandchildren.

If 60,000 children are battered annually, they will mushroom into 1,200,000 in only one generation.

What if some of those grandchildren become your own?

An Open Letter To Bob Price

David Densmore, sports editor of the Amarillo newspaper, is making quite a lot of noise about the poor attendance at the home Buffalo basketball games.

Densmore reflects an almost incredulous tone in his columns and now news stories about how bad attendance is.

I don't find it hard to believe at all. By moving the basketball team from Canyon to Amarillo, the university lost a lot of Canyon identification with the team. They also lost a few students who won't travel to Amarillo to see the team play.

But, apparently WTSU students are not attenders. Time and time again excellent speakers are brought to the campus by various groups and presented for student edification. Attendance is always poor, with never more than a handful present for any speaker.

Cong. Bob Price
Washington, D.C.

Dear Congressman:

During October of 1972 (just before the November general election), I talked with you on the telephone and later, at your insistence, wrote you a letter outlining several questions I wanted you to ask the FHA concerning no-recourse loans and losses suffered by FHA due to the no-recourse clause in FHA guaranteed loans.

I say "at your insistence" because my initial request was simply that you personally look into the matter of what one FHA official in Lubbock has termed a "national scandal," and based on your determination of the veracity of that assessment, that you initiate legislation to reconcile the apparently fraudulent no-recourse loan situation.

Understandably, I did not hear from you on my request until following your re-election. Somewhat later, after several telephone calls, I received a letter from you stating that you were checking into the matter.

Since receipt of the letter, which was, I believe, approximately two months ago, I have telephoned your Amarillo office numerous times to check on the progress of my request. In all cases, your office-worker has seemed more than anxious to track down my correspondence and determine why I have received no further answer from you. Still, however, there is not only no answer from you but no answer from your office-worker.

Frankly, as the legislative session wears on, I am becoming impatient. Five months seems like more than enough time for even the federal bureaucracy to move on a congressional request.

If I do not hear from you in a positive manner on this matter within 30 days, I will have no alternative but to assume that you have no intention of pursuing my request.

Sincerely,
Carroll Wilson

Reader Says Column On Problems Absurd

Dear Mr. Martin,

I was amazed by Ann Brown's truly incredible article "Ten Commandments are Way to Solve Problems." Never have I read anything quite like it. In fact, I cannot ever remember having seen such a towering example of absurdity and fallacious reasoning.

Her self-righteous indignation about such "drastic social changes" as "busing, abortion, and banning God from our schools" was humorous. The Supreme Court ruled against segregation of schools according to race in 1954. In the nine years between then and 1963, when busing was implemented as a tool to carry out the ruling, 1 percent of the South's schools had attained integration. At that rate, desegregation would have taken 900 years! That's a rather long time to wait in hopes of getting a chance at a decent education. The abortion laws were stricken down because of vagueness in language, for the most part. A vague law is dangerously subject to wide misinterpretation and has no basis for existence. God was not banished from our schools. The Court reasoned that He did not need the State to support Him by making school children pray. The home is the proper place for that.

Her quotation of Louisiana's William Guste lent a touch of dignity to a paranoid statement which harkened to the spirit of Joe McCarthy.

Her knowledge of history is remarkably poor. F.D.R. did not pack the Supreme Court with liberals in 1933. In fact, he did not appoint one single justice in his first term! In 1937 he did attempt to pack the court with extra justices who were more sympathetic to his ideas. He failed, because the American people and Congress felt that the Supreme Court should not be tampered with.

The rest of her article makes even less sense than what preceded. Does she really believe that the Supreme Court is controlled by Satan?

It is no longer popular to believe in Satan's existence, that's true, but that's because it's no longer sensible to hold that belief. Her analogy with the microbes is faulty. Microbes can be seen under a microscope and can be grown in laboratories. Has Satan ever been seen physically? Can he be touched, seen, or observed in any way? No.

Her last paragraph is a gem. Logicians call it the fallacy of perfection. If everyone followed the 10 Commandments, there would be no trouble. True. If everyone followed the Buddha's teachings, there would be no trouble. If everyone were perfect, there would be no trouble. Unfortunately, things don't work that way.

I only wish that Ann Brown would take some philosophy courses at WT, particularly the logic course.

Yours,
Mark C. Oldham

We're Lucky To Have Pond

City Desk:

I wonder if the citizens in Randall County know how fortunate we are to have Judge Woody Pond as one of our county officials? I've never met the gentleman, but have taken many problems to him via telephone. No matter how large or small this problem has been, he has not only shown interest, but has taken immediate action, or directed us in seeking the proper sources to take care of the problem.

I would like to express my appreciation of his efforts on behalf of the people of this county he so selflessly serves.

Sincerely,
Karen White

Thanks For News Support

Dear Mr. Martin:

I want to take this opportunity to express our appreciation for the coverage and support afforded Canyon High School by your newspaper. Undoubtedly the great number of student activities scheduled during the year makes it very difficult for you to give coverage at an equal rate for all events, but we know that your efforts are always in this direction.

The most recent favor paid us is, of course, the full page coverage relative to the musical "Oklahoma". We know that with support such as this, the annual all school musical attraction will continue to be one of the highlights of the school year at Canyon High School. We are grateful for this support.

Our cooperation with you and your staff is assured. Please call on us for assistance at any time.

Sincerely,
John Sommer, Principal

Telephone Usage Rises

The number of telephones in service — a barometer of community growth — climbed to more than 7,217 in Canyon as of December 1, 1972.

The figure was released by Mike Patrick, Southwestern Bell manager, who said it represents an increase of 3.2 per cent in telephone growth for the city in 1972.

"Because of telephone growth in cities such as Canyon, Southwestern Bell in 1972 became the largest telephone company in the Bell System and the largest non-government owned phone company in the world," the manager said. Southwestern Bell serves more than 11,477,000 phones in a territory composed of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri and a small portion of Illinois.

Not only has the number of phones increased, but so has the number of calls being made by customers. Company records indicate the number of calls made in the Canyon-Amarillo area during an average business day in November, 1972, totaled 621,080, a 9.6 per cent increase over the average November day in 1971.

Patrick said telephone growth is expected to continue at a healthy pace. The company forecasts that there will be 9,300 telephones in Canyon by the end of 1976.

To keep pace with growth in Canyon, Southwestern Bell recently completed adding cable to the east area of the city. More cable is scheduled to be added in the northeast sector of Canyon in late 1973.

Patrick said the 1973 construction budget for Southwestern Bell's San Antonio Area, of which Canyon is a part, will be $182 million, an increase of $30 million over 1972. The San Antonio Area covers approximately two-thirds of the western part of Texas.

WTSU Business Degree Stronger, Tougher Now

West Texas State University School of Business has restructured its Master of Business Administration Degree program, bringing it to the level of the strongest in the country, Dean Eldon Lewis said Saturday.

The new program "is primarily professional in nature and provides a broad background in the functional areas of business administration," he said.

"It is designed for those students who want to become vice presidents, managers or supervisors," added Dr. Zeke Marchant, chairman of the business administration department.

"This program will challenge the best student," he said. "It is aimed to challenge the student."

Lewis said the revised program becomes effective next fall, completing two years of revision work on the old MBA Degree which the university has offered for a number of years.

Marchant said the School of Business reviewed the MBA programs of the finest business schools in the country before making any changes.

The basic curriculum of the revised program consists of 12 courses, eight of which are specified and four are electives, Lewis said. This will total 36 semester hours with no thesis required, he added.

The specified courses are accounting for decision making, problems in business research, seminar in business environmental issues, seminar in finance, seminar in management, seminar in marketing, quantitative analysis in business and studies in macro and micro economics.

"The MBA program is designed to serve students with undergraduate degrees in fields other than business and who desire to undertake professional studies in the area of business administration," Marchant said.

"Students who do not have an academic background in business must complete the following courses," Lewis said.

Corporation finance, principles of organization and management, principles of marketing, financial accounting, statistical methods in business and economics, computer systems and their use and topics in contemporary economic theory. This could total 21 additional semester hours, Lewis said.

"Flexibility is provided in the MBA program through the electives," the dean said. "Twelve hours of electives permit in-depth or advanced study of a particular functional area for those students who find such specialization in accord with intended career objectives."

"If the student does not wish to specialize in one of the functional areas, some of which may be outside the School of Business."

Rev. Toepfer Will Preach At Revival

Canyon Church of the Nazarene will offer a week of evening revival services led by the Rev. Paul A. Toepfer beginning Monday, Feb. 26, through Sunday, March 4. The services begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

Rev. Toepfer, a native of Kingfisher, Okla., is an Elder in the Church of the Nazarene. He is a graduate of the Nazarene Bible College, Colorado Springs, Colo., where he began his ministry in song and preaching. He pastored the Nazarene Church in Fowler, Colo., while a student and also held revivals there.

After graduation Rev. Toepfer accepted the pastorate of the Church of the Nazarene in Petersburg, where he now makes his home. His family will be available to sing with him at the Canyon revival during the weekend.

The public is invited to attend the nightly services of preaching and singing. Special music will be provided each evening.

Homemaker Award For CHS Student

The Canyon High School Future Homemakers of America will sponsor a Tasting Bee of gourmet foods at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the West Texas State University student union building.

Money raised through the bee will be used to help FHA projects including a trip to a state meeting.

Recipes will be given out free during the bee.

Charge is $1.50 for adults with children under 6 admitted free.

Mrs. Cathy Cameron is sponsor of the FHA chapter at CHS.

The program "permits each student to chart his entire program of specialization around the required courses," Lewis said.

Areas of specialization include accounting, business education, computer information systems, economics, finance, general business, management, marketing and operations research.

Most classes will consist of six to 30 students and each student will be assigned an advisor in his major area of study, Lewis said.

"These small classes will foster student participation and permit an easy exchange of ideas and individual consultations between students and faculty," he said.

All of the required graduate courses will be offered in the fall or spring semesters, in the night program or Saturday morning, Marchant said.

"Fulltime students who have an undergraduate degree in business will be able to complete the MBA program in one year while those who have an undergraduate degree in areas other than business will require a longer period," Lewis said. "Part-time students are invited to enroll."

"Our requirements for the master's degree 'are more rigorous than in the past,'" Marchant said.

"We are requiring more 500-level course work than ever before. This puts us above the majority of schools offering the MBA," he said.

Canyon Student On USMA Honor Roll

Cadet Michael W. Cannon, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Cannon Jr., of 1208 Creekmore, made the dean's list last term at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.

Cannon is a sophomore student at the Academy.

He is scheduled for parachutist training this summer as well as a five-week tour of duty in Europe as a "third lieutenant" in a Regular Army combat unit.

Choir Director Is Panel Member

Tom Jennings, choral director at Canyon High School, will be a member of a panel at the American Choral Directors Association meeting March 7-10 in Kansas City, Mo.

Jennings said the panel, made up of five directors from throughout the United States, will discuss "Training Conductors: How We Are Doing."

Other members of the panel include Tom Summerville of the University of Southern California, Harold Crouse of Tacoma, Washington, Robert Edgerton of Whitney College in South Carolina, and Norma Raybourne from Oak Park, Ill.

Jennings said he was recommended for the panel by Dr. Gene Brooks, director of Choral Activities at Midwestern University.

The panel will discuss the training of choral directors and the type of curriculum a college should offer to train directors.

Canyon Water Superintendent Holds AA Competency Rating

"A double AA license to somebody like me means everything in the world — they are the ultimate," Robert Rogers, superintendent of the water and sewer department with the City of Canyon, received his Class A certificate for waste water competency recently and also holds a Class A certificate for water works competency which he received last year.

According to City manager George Louder, Rogers is one of 115 men in the state of Texas who have qualified for both Class A certificates since the certification program was effected in 1948.

The certification is awarded after passing a test administered by the state health department at A&M University. Rogers said last year two of 22 persons taking the test passed and about five of 22 who took the test this year passed.

Rogers, an employee of the city for 12 years, said the city is required by the state health department, to have at least one licensed operator in the water and sewerage department.

Rogers said Canyon is very fortunate in having in addition to himself three other operators with Class C licenses.

"The certificate gives you pride in your work," Rogers said.

"The job is becoming more technical and to keep up the operators must have technical training," he added. "I wouldn't work in any other business."

The certification program is designed to make an operator aware of what is required to keep a safe water supply, Rogers said.

Rogers who just returned from a pollution control school, said the city has come under more and more state and federal regulations since he began work for the city.

"You wouldn't believe what they expect of a city," he stated.

Rogers cited the Water Pollution Abatement Act as an example.

teacher education in relationship to the community and community schools. It has the power to require professors throughout the university to tailor courses to meet the needs of future teachers.

The resolution will be sent to the Texas Education Agency.

Dr. Pete Petersen, president of the AAUP chapter, said he told members at the Thursday meeting that the national AAUP newsletter contains an advertisement seeking someone to fill the presidency at the university.

Petersen said Dr. Malzahn told the members that the recent student evaluation of faculty members "is important and necessary."

The student evaluation drew fire from several professors recently.

"He said it is necessary from the standpoint of upgrading the university if we are to become a university of excellence," Petersen quoted Malzahn as saying.

Petersen said the vice president also pointed to pressures from outside the university, pressures from the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to have evidence to support salary increases and promotions.

Malzahn reportedly told the members the results of student evaluation would be used only for a faculty member and his department head and would not be used above that level.

Building. . .

After the architects and Louder work with the functional drawings which came out of this week's meetings, the architects will then work with space and the design stages and the result will be a master plan.

This plan will be presented to the city commission in the form of a written report. Engler said the report should be ready in approximately 60 days.

The steps following the completion of the master plan include the schematic design stage, design development stage when single-line drawings will be changed to include wall thicknesses and the mechanical aspects of the building, and finally the preparation of construction documents and the letting of bids.

Hogan is a vice-president of the architectural firm in charge of the Dallas office and Southwest operations. Engler is a vice-president in charge of architectural project development and design coordination from Omaha, Neb.

The firm does much of their work for public institutions, Hogan said.

greater use of water today.

"Canyon is tied to underground water and it is a relatively fixed supply so conservation of it is very important," Louder said.

He compared water to a precious metal, people have to pay for it. "People must realize that when they pay their water bill they are paying for something that is depletable," he said.

If Canyon residents would maintain their own water systems it would be a great help in water conservation, Louder said. A leak is costing the customer for something he is not getting anything for but it is also wasting the water. "We only want to charge a customer for something he has made good use of in this instance," Louder said.

Louder said someday it may be feasible to recycle waste water, not for human consumption, but for use on grounds.

Mardis said one of the most important ways to conserve gas is to change the filter in heating systems often. If the filters are dirty the air flow is restricted which results in a higher gas usage, he said.

Insulation is also very important in the attic and walls of a house to keep heat from moving out and cold from moving in, he mentioned.

Residents with fireplaces should close the damper to the fireplace as soon as the coals are out, otherwise heat will be forced through the chimney. Doors which are opened for long periods of time will result in heat loss, he added.

Double glass windows are good insulators and drapes over windows also help. Mardis said good insulation would pay for itself in the cost of fuel savings.

Mardis said the public has been made aware of gas shortages. Experts, he said, show there is plenty of gas available but it may be in the wrong location and is an expense to transport. "Gas will cost more in the future so it is reasonable that people should conserve from the standpoint of their own pocket-book," Mardis said.

Gidden said the main waste of electricity comes from use of electrical lights and other devices when they are not needed. "That's what wall switches are put on walls for," Gidden said.

Gidden said he could drive down a Canyon street in the morning and 25 to 50 per cent of the porch lights would be on.

Gidden said Canyon was not experiencing a fuel shortage at the present time but that the problem would be a national one in the future.

Gidden said his company was still promoting the use of items such as barbecue grills, yard lights and other electrical appliances. Mardis was not aware of the present policy of his company on advertising.

"Electricity is a manufactured product," Gidden said, and if the electric companies run out of gas they will find a substitute for fuel to heat the boilers to generate electricity.

"We have more than one shot at producing electricity," he said.

water and sewage operators in the city of Canyon part of the credit for the good water supply.

Rogers will undergo minor surgery Monday for repair of his left arm as a result of burns received in April. Rogers was injured when an electrical control panel exploded at the local dump.

Rogers spent 20 days in the hospital for therapy as a result of the accident which he says is the only major accident he has been involved in.

Rogers attended Canyon High School and West Texas State University. He, his wife, Mary and their son, Randy, 9, live at 304 5th Ave.

He is also an assistant chief with the Canyon Volunteer Fire Department.

Taxes. . .

not hold for the plaintiffs, the state should see no tax increase this year. But, if other means of financing must be found, he warned, taxes might be increased.

Dr. Pat Kelso of West Texas State University explained the history of the ad valorem tax and said it's probably the oldest tax in American history, a tax brought to this country from England.

He said state governments made wide-spread use of the ad valorem tax until recent years, when the ad valorem tax has gained in popularity for local governments like counties, cities and school districts.

Carroll Wilson, editor of the Canyon News, briefly outlined costs to taxpayers for collecting county, city and school taxes.

Larry Brandon, Amarillo attorney, explained how delinquent taxes are collected.

Following the formal discussions, Poff and Brandon along with other persons present speculated on the ramifications which might follow if the state is forced to centralize tax assessing offices throughout the state.

Poff said he is worried that such centralization would weaken local control and might eventually lead to federal involvement.

Next meeting of the group will involve a panel discussion on U.S. economy on March 23.

Club Women Plan Meeting

Federated Club women in Canyon are in the process of making plans for the Top of Texas District Convention to be held April 6-7 in the Activities Center at West Texas State University.

Mrs. Lila Vars, District president, and Mrs. Barbara Wirt, general chairman for the convention, have said that 350 to 400 women are expected to attend the meetings. Reservations have been made at two of the motels in town to accommodate delegates.

The Top of Texas District embraces 76 federated women's clubs in about 24 towns of the Panhandle. The April convention will be the first District Convention ever to be held in Canyon.

Committees and their chairmen appointed by Mrs. Vars are the following: Program, Mrs. Ella Brown; Expeditors of Protocol, Mrs. Jo Carol Lindsey; Platform, Mrs. Dorothy Byrd; Exhibits, Mrs. Peggy Smallwood; President's Aide, Mrs. Betty Knowles; Registration, Mrs. Betty Irlbeck; Credentials, Mrs. Bobby Henson; Arrangements, Mrs. Suzy Lundy; Hostesses to Special Guests, Mrs. Lennie Harter; Doorkeeper, Mrs. Betty Howard; Pages, Mrs. Thelma Childs; Timekeeper, JoAnne Davidchek; Courtesy Resolution, Mrs. Virginia Allen; Publicity, Mrs. Sharon Brown; and Packets, Mrs. Virginia Cotton.

and would be consistent with deed restrictions on the property prior to annexation.

Thompson noted a petition signed by 13 Crow Addition residents asking that the zoning be single-family residential.

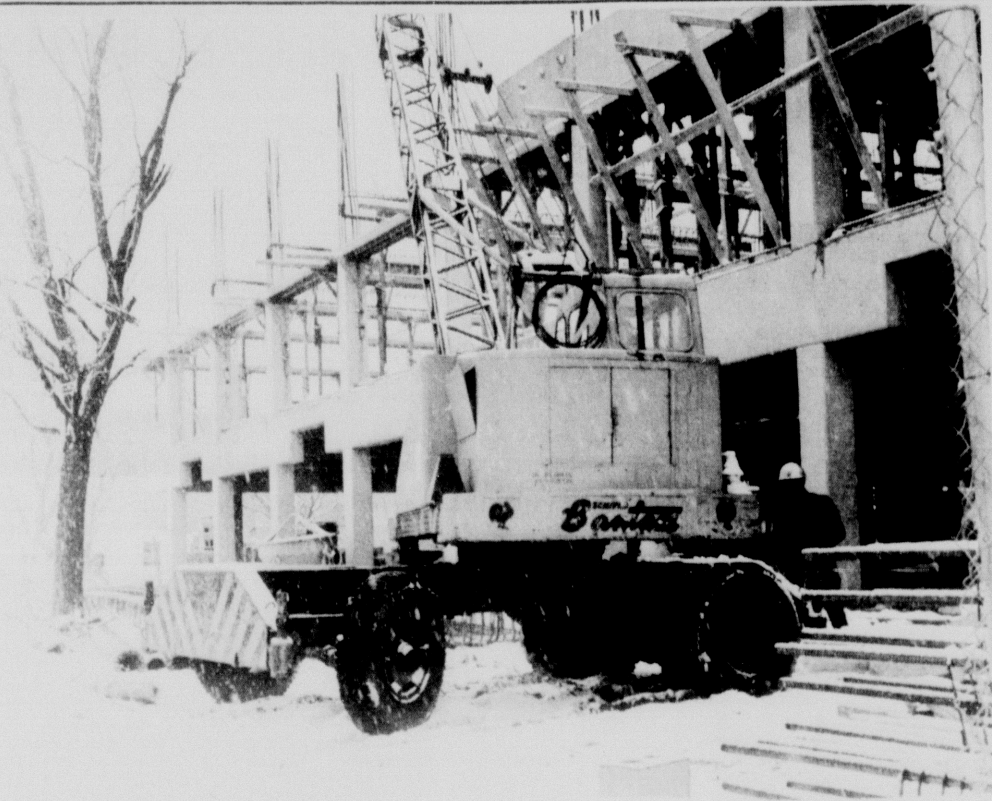

Several residents spoke up in favor of the zoning.

C.C. Stephens, however, told the commissioners he feels the addition should be zoned commercial.

"I feel like if the city of Canyon wants to grow it's going to have to furnish a place to grow," he said.

Fred Rathjen, one of those present at the hearing, told commissioners they have an opportunity in Canyon to ensure that the city avoid "municipal ugliness."

Commissioners approved the zoning as residential.

The snow fell and work stopped on the new science building at West Texas State University Thursday. Contractors in Canyon report construction is behind schedule due to the snow and cold weather and building prices are up.

Construction Suffers From Snow - Cold Weather

Building construction in Canyon has virtually come to a standstill but the price of building materials continues to rise. . . .

And the culprit for both is the weather. Some builders have estimated they are behind schedule as much as 60-90 days on construction and during the delay prices for building materials have increased 10 to 15 per cent.

The two largest construction projects under-way in Canyon at the present time are the new science and library buildings on the campus of West Texas State University.

Carl Meeks, superintendent on the library building, said construction was a month behind schedule mainly due to the weather.

"This winter has been 75 per cent worse than any winter I have experienced in construction," Meeks said. Meeks said he had worked with construction since 1950.

Weeks said the snow and the cold means construction cannot progress at all.

Meeks also stressed the delay in the delivery of materials as a prime problem in construction.

The supervisor said many of the men on the construction job work by the hour but many are salaried and the office expenses of a construction company such as Reid and Gary Strickland continues.

"Tomorrow may be a pretty day," he said, "but we will spend half the day getting the snow off."

Jerry Munson, superintendent on the science building construction, said he was four to five weeks behind construction schedule.

"The mechanical people and the electricians can work but as far as construction itself, there is no way we can work," Munson said Thursday.

Munson said there is a certain amount of time figured into a job to allow for bad weather but when a contractor goes over that time, it starts costing.

Both superintendents said they hoped to make up the lost time and finish both jobs on time.

A.L. Crossland said he was as much as 60 days behind on some construction jobs. Crossland said he had lost more time due to weather this year than any winter since he began building in 1947.

The number of buildings is still up, they are just delayed. C.A. Collie, city building inspector, said plenty of permits have been issued by the city but "they just weren't able to work."

Crossland said a dental clinic was supposed to be completed Feb. 15 and workers have not started the brick. The blueprints for a house that was to have been started in January were done Friday.

Crossland said workers would start on the house next week if the snow melts and the ground is not too muddy to level.

"The delay has cost several thousands of dollars," Crossland said, "due to the fact that while we are sitting prices have been going up."

Material prices have gone up as much as 10 per cent, Crossland estimated, in the past 60 days.

Crossland said it was not so much the severity of the weather but so many snows and cold spells. "When one front comes through, it will be pretty for a day or two and another will come," he said.

Crossland said he could see no end in sight for rising cost. "When the weather breaks, I look for all the lumber yards and lumber dealers to run out of lumber. Consumption will be faster than the mills can get it here."

Crossland said the supply of lumber is short and the demand is high. The supply is short because of the weather and the difficulty of getting the trees out of the forest, but also because of high exports, Crossland said.

The mills are shipping millions of square feet of lumber abroad, mainly to Japan," he stressed.

Harold Hagemer who is in charge of the Building Trades Class at Canyon High School, said the class poured the foundation and put in rough plumbing on a house they had planned to build this year and had to stop work because of the weather.

Hagemer said the class would not have been able to finish the job by May and so they postponed the project until fall. "All of our work has been inside since November," Hagemer said. He added the class has a lot of outside work to do when the weather clears.

Hagemer estimated material costs have risen 10 to 15 per cent during this time of delay and he said he expects costs to continue to rise all the rest of the year.

"Probably the additional cost on residential work alone will cost a new home owner at least 15 per cent," he predicted.

Hagemer also said the quality of the building materials is below that received not too long ago because of adverse weather conditions in the forests.

He said two weeks ago there was no three-quarter inch plywood available in either Canyon or Amarillo and that the price of plywood varies with each shipment.

"When we do get nice weather where we can work, we can't find men to work because there are so many people waiting for workers," he said.

"It gets to be a vicious circle," he added.

"Unless a contractor had a lot of inside work, this winter has probably cost him thousands of dollars," Hagemer said.

Had a party? Or giving one? Tell The Canyon News about it. Telephone 655-7121, or stop by the News office on the south side of the square.

Commission Calls Special Meeting

The Canyon City Commission is expected this week to meet with officials of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. concerning the company's recent attempts to have rates in Canyon hiked.

City Manager George Louder said he received a letter Friday from Dave Dillard, Amarillo Bell manager, formally withdrawing the company's previous rate hike.

The letter says the hike is withdrawn "until we have had an opportunity to discuss the matter further with the city." Bell attorneys are expected to meet with City Attorney Elton Cox this week to further discuss the company action, which was condemned by city officials last week.

The phone company filed a rate hike for Canyon residents recently with the city clerk. City commissioners felt they should have a role in setting the rates for the company in Canyon.

Veterans Condemn Vietnam Amnesty

Representatives of Canyon's two veterans organizations unconditionally condemned last week any prospect of amnesty for draft-dodgers and deserters during the Vietnam conflict.

County Judge Woody Pond, vice commander of the American Legion post here, and Shorty Flowers, head of the Veterans of Foreign Wars here, condemned any thought of amnesty for those who refused to serve in the Armed Forces during the Vietnam war.

"If one person has to stand up to his responsibility, I think everybody should share that responsibility equally," Pond said. "I'm not for amnesty for anybody."

Pond, a combat commander during World War II, said that although there has been amnesty declared following other wars in the nation's history, he has always been unalterably opposed to it.

"If they want to return, everyone of them ought to have to stand trial," Pond said. "I think it is just like any other crime as far as I'm concerned."

Pond said the fact that Vietnam was not a declared war has no bearing on the amnesty question as far as he is concerned.

"I don't care whether it was a moral war or not," he declared. "Any time the country is at war or any conflict, you ought to stand up and take your medicine. That's the law and you ought to abide by it."

Flowers said the local VFW post as well as the national office are also absolutely opposed to amnesty for draft-dodgers and deserters.

"We don't make any bones about it at all," he said. "We're all bitterly against it."

Study Shows Canyon Population Increases

Canyon's current population was estimated last week at 8850, a rise of more than 500 over the official 1970 census figure of 8333.

Roland Black, chamber of commerce manager, said the Population Technical Committee of Amarillo released the results of a month-long study on population in the Potter-Randall county area.

The figures reveal Canyon's population is increasing at the same rapid rate it increased during the 1960s.

"We grew about 250 people a year every year during the 1960s," he said. "Since our population is now about 8850, we have continued that 250 per year growth."

Black said figures reveal about 2,000 persons live in Randall County now outside of the corporate limits of Canyon and Amarillo.

Chamber President Raymond Raillard termed the figures "fairly authentic."

He said no projections in future population resulted from the studies.

The committee estimates the population of the Amarillo Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area at 152,997. The area includes all of Potter and Randall counties.

Raillard said the figures were based on estimates from postal authorities, school district authorities, utility companies, newspapers and other sources.

The figures released last week show a 1970 official Potter-Randall population of 144,396. Estimated population for 1972 was placed at 149,700.

Figures show an estimated 281 additional occupied dwelling units in Canyon in the past two years.

Vincent Price To Speak At WTSU

SCENE: A fog-enshrouded manor, the lord of which, with a maniacal gleam in his eye, proceeds with relish to subject a hapless visitor to all varieties of torture known to the Spanish Inquisition.

The film described is "Pit and the Pendulum," one of a series of movie adaptations of Edgar Allen Poe's morbid tales in which Vincent Price, as the Mephistophelean antagonist in many, played a pivotal role.

Price, the villainous aristocrat of Hollywood gothic films, and, in real life, one of the world's best known bon vivants, will be featured in a lecture scheduled March 2 at West Texas State University.

His appearance, at 8 p.m. in the Activities Center, is under auspices of the WTSU Special Programs Committee.

Born in St. Louis, Price's initial aim in life, he says, was to become a teacher and collector of art, an aim stimulated by his purchase of a Rembrandt etching when he was only 12 years old.

He attended the Country Day School in St. Louis and went on to major in art at Yale University. He continued his studies at London University while working toward a master's degree.

While in London, he satisfied another artistic interest — the theatre — and obtained his first theatrical role "as a lark." His first major role was in the London production of "Victoria Regina," which was later brought to New York by Gilbert Miller. The young Price returned to America with the company to play Prince Consort Albert opposite the redoubtable Helen Hayes as Victoria.

Since then, Price has been a leading film, television and stage star. He has starred in more than 100 films, among the best known of which are "Song of Bernadette," "Laura," "Dragonwyck," "House of Seven Gables," "Ten Commandments" and "Story of Mankind."

Commissioners To Discuss County Annex

Possible expansion of the Randall County courthouse annex in South Amarillo is expected to be a topic of discussion Monday afternoon for county commissioners.

The commissioners meet at 1 p.m. in the courthouse in Canyon.

Also on the agenda is the selection of a depository for county money, an issue which has been the object of heated debate for two weeks by commissioners.

Commissioner John Fulgenzi told The News last week he thinks the courthouse annex in South Amarillo should be expanded to meet the needs of the Amarillo county population.

Commissioners tabled decision on selecting a county depository last week after a motion to reject two Canyon bank bids for the deposit died for lack of a second.

Fulgenzi had moved that the county reject both bids and readvertise in surrounding counties.

Commissioner Bill Butler seconded the motion but later withdrew his second when he was charged with "gross misuse of discretion," by First National Bank attorney Elton Cox.

First National Bank had bid an interest rate on time deposits equal to interest paid on U.S. Treasury notes. West Texas State Bank bid a flat 4 per cent interest rate.

Commissioners were disgruntled by both bids and talked at length about taking county funds to banks outside the county for deposit.

County Judge Woody Pond signs a proclamation naming March 5-9 as Public School Week in Randall County as Bobby Byrd, left, and R. D. Wheelock, right, look on.

Byrd and Wheelock are both associated with the school system and with the Masonic Lodge, which sponsors Texas Public School Week.

Faculty Polled On New President

Faculty members at West Texas State University are being polled this week on the qualifications they would like to see the next president of WTSU possess.

Results of the poll will be made public and will be given the screening committee which is reviewing applications for the presidency.

The survey is distributed by the university faculty council, headed by Dr. Jerry Miller, who is also a member of the screening committee.

The poll asks faculty members to rank certain qualifications according to importance. Among the qualifications listed:

"administrative experience at a major college or university"

"administrative experience in a field other than higher education"

"proven record as a fund raiser"

"nationally recognized scholarship"

"at least two years of college teaching during the past ten years"

"a degree from an academically prestigious institution"

"an earned doctorate"

"under 45 years of age"

"ability to deal successfully with groups and agencies which exert significant influence over the university, i.e., Legislature, Board of Regents and area business community"

Miller said the survey is distributed primarily for use by the faculty council, since it contains other questions pertaining to tenure policies.

He said the survey is an attempt to become more familiar with the views of the more than 300 faculty members at the university.

"We represent the faculty and the more we can find out about what the faculty thinks about any matter the better we can serve their interests," he said. "It was in that spirit that the questions were constructed.

"The selection of a president is as important an issue as we've ever been confronted with before. This is to gain some insight into faculty views."

Miller said results of the survey will be given the screening committee which is searching for a new university president to replace Dr. James P. Cornette upon his retirement.

One question in the poll asks faculty members whether they "believe that the faculty should have some voice concerning the suitability of candidates for President of WTSU."

Another question asks faculty members who should represent them in any interaction with candidates for the job—members of the faculty council, a committee chosen by the faculty council, 11 faculty members elected by the faculty, or 5 faculty members elected from each college or school.

Zilka Hearing Set March 19

Anthony Martin Zilka, convicted of the rape of the daughter of his common-law wife, will be returned to Canyon for a hearing on March 19.

Judge E.E. "Gene" Jordan, signed a bench warrant for Zilka last week.

Zilka, who is serving time in the state penitentiary, has filed a writ of habeas corpus for new trial in Randall County.

He was convicted in the mid-1960s of the rape of a 3-year-old girl.

Zilka was previously scheduled to be returned to Canyon before Christmas for the hearing but he underwent back surgery which delayed his return.

Nall, McNeill Exchange Vows

Miss Cynthia Mae Nall and James Harmon McNeill exchanged marriage vows in a candlelight ceremony on Saturday evening, Feb. 3, in the Fritch Church of Christ in Fritch, Tex. The Rev. Dwayne Dennis, minister of the Central Church of Christ in Canyon, read the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Nall of Fritch, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McNeill of Happy.

Two seven-branched candelabra bearing white tapers, a large arrangement of blue and white roses, and two pompom arrangements of greenery decorated the church. A triple candelabra was used by the couple in a ceremony symbolizing their union.

A group of students from Lubbock Christian College sang A Time for Us, Let It Be Me, and the wedding processional and recessional. In the group were James Hobbs, Doug Harriman, Beth Deel, Tommy Spoons, Chris Goins, Vanessa Simmons, and Nancy Strawn.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a princess gown of candlelight taffeta made by her mother. The gown was styled with a high neckline outlined in lace, short sleeves of taffeta ending in full sleeves of sheer nylon, and a controlled skirt. White lace accented the high-rise waistline and edged neckline. Her lace bordered veil of tulle fell from a white lace coil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with royal blue ribbon and streamers.

Mrs. Harland Larsen, Abilene, was matron of honor for her sister. Other attendants were Mrs. Bruce Pickard, Abilene, also a sister of the bride; Miss Susan Snow, Lubbock, and Miss Carolyn Breen, Canyon. They wore royal blue taffeta gowns similar to the bride's, styled with short sleeves. Each carried a long-stemmed white carnation with royal blue streamers.

The best man was John Plaster, Abilene. Groomsmen were Dudley McNeill, Happy, brother of the bridegroom; Doug Perrin, Lubbock; Rick Hales, Abilene. Ushers were Harland Larsen, Abilene, Tim McNeill, Happy, brother of the bridegroom; Dennis Maupin and Vernon Brown, both of Lubbock.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nall wore a blue and brown plaid suit and brown accessories. Mrs. McNeill, mother of the bridegroom, wore a royal blue suit with black accessories. Their corsages were of white carnations.

A reception at Dee's Restaurant followed the ceremony. The bride's table was laid with white lace cloth over blue. The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with a spiral stairway with lighted candles on each step, topped with miniature bridal couple. Serving were Mrs. C. W. Snow, Mrs. Terry Tolbert, Miss Jan Wood, and Miss Chris Goins.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Albuquerque, N. M., the bride wore a two-piece green velvet suit with white carnation corsage.

The couple is at home at 107 28th St. in Canyon.

Accent on the Arts...

By JUNE DAYEN
UNIVERSITY WIVES, ETC. Art Interest Group has grown into one of the most active art groups in Canyon under the leadership of Mrs. Ann Carlisle.
WEDNESDAY MORNING The group toured displays at the Canyon Art Gallery and Panhandle Plains Museum. Mrs. James P. Cornette personally conducted them around her gallery and gave interesting vignettes of the artists and their works.
AT PANHANDLE PLAINS Museum the girls were treated to a special exhibit of antique quilts and also viewed the new permanent exhibit of Frank Reaugh's pastels and oils.

ACCORDING TO MUSEUM Art Director, Vandra Bugbee, Reaugh was entranced by the scenery of this region and made frequent trips up from Dallas to paint and conduct workshops. Some of his former students recall an obnoxious habit of waking them up at wee small hours to observe colorful dawns. He made his own pastels and pastel paper. The collection contains large oils as well as miniatures — some painted in England.

THIS HAS BEEN a weekend of theater-going for Canyonites, with two major productions under way — "Oklahoma!" at Canyon High School and "Mary of Scotland" in the Branding Iron Theater.

"MARY OF SCOTLAND" will be repeated in a 2 p.m. matinee this afternoon, in case you have not yet seen this fine production. Tickets are $1.50 for adults, $1.00 for students, and free to WTSU people with ID cards.

Dr. William Erwin, of the School of Education at WTSU, presented the program on the self-concept of children.
Members noted they will help in the campaign here of the American Cancer Society which gets underway on April 3.

Filing Deadline
Report Wrong
School Supt. Jerry Jacobs said last week that filing deadline for those who might want to run for election to the Canyon School Board is March 7 rather than March 6 as previously reported.

Richardson fans who have enjoyed their performances in musical productions at WTSU will want to catch their senior voice recital tomorrow afternoon at 4 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium. Many enjoyed Steve's original opera, "On the Road" produced during this year's Christmas season.

WELCOME BACK TO Benny Hester, former WT student and member of the "TEXAS" cast, who is performing at 8 p.m. tonight in the pop-rock-country concert at the Activities Center. Tickets costing $2.50 for WT students and $3.50 for the public are available at the AC box office.
BENNY AND STEVE Hilton together headed out to Las Vegas several years ago to make their fortune in the music and recording business. Steve returned after a time, but Benny remained and now has out an album, entitled "Benny."

CAROL CRAIN IS in and about town this weekend, bubbling with enthusiasm for the many activities she and husband Claiborn are involved in down in Austin. As legislative aide to Rep. Phil Calles of Pampa, she was here in line of duty to set up a dinner meeting for constituents in Childress. Carol says her boss, the only WT graduate in the legislature, is "dear to work for." Claiborn is clerk for the House Administration Committee, chaired by Sen. Jack Hightower. They live at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Apt. 250, Austin 78757.
CAROL IS ALSO busy making plans for exhibits of artist Dimple Crow's paintings. She plans to take back two paintings for exhibit in offices of Bryan Poff and Phil Calles. Also hopes to schedule a "Breath of Spring Exhibit" in connection with a Housewives' luncheon, possibly at the historic Driskill Hotel.

THOSE WHO WOULD like to see some of the original Crow paintings have only to walk into the Canyon News offices. The fortunate staff gets to view them in the course of every day's work.

MARGARET HARPER OF "Texas" reported the "Up With People" cast which performed at the Amarillo Civic Center on Wednesday night was taken out to the Palo Duro Amphitheater on Tuesday and shown the light and sound system used in "Texas" by Pat Jarrett.

RANDY CARVER, WTSU graduate, is now being seen in the film "Time to Run" at theaters in the Panhandle. It is currently running in Wichita Falls and will soon be coming to Canyon.

AT A RECENT Canyon Dames coffee, Mrs. A. L. Ralston showed jewelry and fabric made by craftsmen in Thailand where she spent a year as supervisor of a school. Can you imagine buying star sapphires, goldstones and rubies for $3 to $5? She did — in the native market place — and then had them set as gifts in 18 carat gold mountings. Her informal talk, laced with gentle humor, was most interesting.

AFTER THE THURSDAY night performance of "Oklahoma!" the cast presented Troy Martin, publisher of the Canyon News, with a memento he will treasure for some time to come.

THE SOUVENIR WAS page 14 of the Feb. 22 issue of The Canyon News completely filled with pictures taken by him of scenes and cast from the musical — and personally autographed by all the young actors and actresses in the "Oklahoma!" production.
IT WAS A touching gesture of "thanks" for promoting Canyon High School's annual spring musical.
THE NEWS OWNER is not a sentimental man. In the wake of certain professional awards, Martin has been heard to comment to the effect, "That and a nickel too will let you ride any streetcar in town."

AND HE'S NOT an autograph collector — although past experience has brought him in contact with many in the public eye.
BUT THIS IS different. He'll keep these autographs of the kids in the "Oklahoma!" musical.
MAYBE RUNNING A newspaper isn't such a tough business after all.

Mrs. Ralston said that one of the nice surprises was that "right away there were a lot of people who wanted to take me places and do things for me." On the morning after her arrival about 45 people called to welcome her. Later in the day she met with the board of the mission, composed of three missionaries, a consulate official, and another official. She was immediately asked to assume duties as principal and administrator of the school. And it

Canyon Dames Glimpse Life In Thailand

A glimpse of Thailand, where natives build houses for evil spirits but telephone calls are made via satellite, was pictured for members of Canyon Dames at their coffee Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 13, in the Episcopal University Center.
Mrs. A. L. Ralston, a retired teacher and administrator, was the speaker. Prior to her arrival in Canyon last September, she had spent a year as principal of Chiang Mai Educational Center, about 500 miles north of Bangkok.

A wired message awakening her in the middle of the night, "You are needed in Chiang Mai," set her off for a year's stay in the tropical country on the other side of the world, said Mrs. Ralston. Her position was arranged through COEMAR, Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relationships of the Presbyterian church.

Not long after the wire arrived she found herself at the airport in Chiang Mai, greeted by a committee of about a dozen people who presented her a bouquet of orchids and escorted her to her new home in the mission compound. "It was a nice, two-story house, and I was somewhat relieved to see it, as a letter from them had asked if I could tolerate primitive conditions." She added that most houses there were built on stilts to keep them dry in the rainy season and provide shelter for animals. Two dogs and four cats came with the house, which she shared with another teacher.

Servants are a regular feature of every household, said the retired teacher. She and her housemate were cared for by a cook, who was the overseer for a cleaning maid, gardener, and night watchman. "I was disappointed, because I had thought I would get in the kitchen and make Thai dishes and have so much fun. But every time I started, the cook said, 'I do, I do.'"

Thai people take elaborate security measures, according to the speaker. "Most houses had dogs, bar and locks on the doors and windows, and a night watchman. The signal was to turn off the lights downstairs and go upstairs and turn the lights on. He was to go in and lock the windows and doors, and then after that he would go out and lie down on a mat near the door. He would cough every half hour to let you know he was awake. And then finally he would cough in the morning and come in and unlock, and then he would ride off on his motorcycle." She confessed with a smile she was more afraid of the night watchman than of thieves.

Mrs. Ralston said that one of the nice surprises was that "right away there were a lot of people who wanted to take me places and do things for me." On the morning after her arrival about 45 people called to welcome her. Later in the day she met with the board of the mission, composed of three missionaries, a consulate official, and another official. She was immediately asked to assume duties as principal and administrator of the school. And it was then, upon finding she needed to acquire two more teachers, that she discovered one called COEMAR headquarters by satellite.

She thoroughly enjoyed living in the compound. "I was in the same compound with theological seminars. Every morning at 6:30 you heard sacred music as they entered chapel. Then as soon as that was over, the nurses had their services — and then the students went to chapel. So there was always this music on campus."

Mrs. Ralston said that her school was not recognized by the disapproving Thai government, although they knew it was there. The school was originally started for children of missionaries, who lived in a hostel there, and later children of members of foreign consulates and other foreign business and professional people were added. About 14 nationalities were represented in the 100 students, and 18 teachers. The "American curriculum," Bible, and the Thai language were taught, but there were added bonuses to her work also.

"Who in the United States would have the opportunity to take children to see Queen Elizabeth and meet her individually, or to watch elephants at work, or to visit a wood-carving village?" She commented with pride that children from the school were highly rated upon returning to home countries, and had only praise for the missionaries at Chiang Mai.

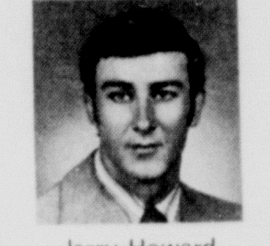

One of the unusual aspects of exotic Thailand was the matter-of-fact acceptance of evil spirits and demons, said the speaker. "I saw spirit houses everywhere and wanted one to decorate my yard, but found that I couldn't buy one — it would be a sacrilege. I found even the business people believed in evil spirits — in fact, there was a spirit house in front of the bank. The hotels, too, had beautiful spirit houses."

Mrs. Ralston said that she took the subject of demons and evil spirits lightly until she heard two of the missionaries ask for prayers for them as they went in to cast out demons. "I found it happened a large group in the leprosy colony had devils cast out, and then some were miraculously healed. ... To tell you the truth, I am still wondering if there really are devils or not."
